

Recruitment Process Outsourcing (RPO) Services

Our RPO Services are aimed at small to medium sized businesses looking to save on their recruitment costs and increase the overall efficiency of their current recruitment processes. Rapidly becoming the most popular service choice for our current customers, our RPO services can include both the design and implementation of the entire/or partial recruitment process for your business. For a cost-effective monthly retained fee we will be your dedicated outsourced recruitment department allowing you to focus on your core business activities. Clients that chose this service benefit from our extensive experience within the industry and in recruitment from bench to director level appointments including business support functions. We have received some excellent feedback from our clients currently using this service, all of which are impressed with the high quality service and overall value-for-money on offer. We add considerable value to our partners by lowering recruitment costs, reducing time to hire and improving candidate quality.

Why chose our RPO Services

Finding high quality candidates to fill vacant positions is vital for the growth and success of any company. The perfect candidate must have the correct skills and abilities to the right level for the business to flourish and who better to understand these requirements than a dedicated, industry specific recruitment company.

Network Scientific provides a recruitment outsourcing solution which allows for a sincere business partnership based on increasing proficiency and effectiveness for both parties. We genuinely want your business to succeed and take pride in helping you to achieve success.

Lowering costs

More and more businesses are moving away from traditional recruitment services due to the capital outlay required for appointments. Cash-flow is essential to the success of any business and our RPO solution enables even the smallest businesses to benefit from our high-quality services. We guarantee to provide you with considerable savings on your recruitment costs without compromising on quality.

Quality candidates

As a specialist recruitment agency within the scientific industries, we understand the abilities, qualifications and skills your perfect candidate requires to be an invaluable member of your team. As recruitment consultants, we have the skills required to source and identify the most suitable people for your business. As scientists, we have great technical understanding enabling us to screen candidates effectively saving you considerable time. Network Scientific will improve the quality of your hires, both on a technical and cultural basis, which will ultimately reduce your staff turnover.

Our Guarantee

We are confident that once you try our RPO services you will be so happy with the results that you will never want to change back to traditional recruitment methods. However should you, for whatever reason, decide that you no longer require our services, you can cancel our contract with one month's written notice at any time.

Our passion is your future

We are here for you and promise to be flexible to your needs. No matter if you are looking to recruit for individual positions on an ad-hoc basis or have a constant, on-going requirement due to rapid expansion, our contracts will be based entirely around your requirements. By paying a small monthly fee that is calculated on the quantity and value of the candidates required and not a large one-time percentage, we will increase the speed of your hires. As your sole outsourced recruiting company you will have our full attention. However long you require our services, we can accommodate you. Our flexibility means contracts can be reviewed every 3 -12 months according your needs.

What Our Clients Say

'We use Network Scientific for recruiting the majority of our staff. They take the time to understand our business culture and help us to integrate the right people into our business. This is why we choose to use Network Scientific's excellent RPO Service. I have no hesitation in recommending the Network Scientific team to anyone looking for a high quality and value-added recruitment service'
